1918 WAR TOTAL NEARED

Ohio Represented by 330,000 Men In Various Branches Of Active Duty

Pickaway county has 1,194 men in Uncle Sam's varied services, Selective Service board disclosed Thursday when state draft headquarters lifted its ban on publication of information concerning the number of men serving the nation.

The county's total includes 692 men sent through Selective Service channels, 204 who have enlisted since Selective Service was put into operation, and 298 who are members of the National Guard and other units of similar nature of whom the board has reports.

Announcement of the total in service is the first official information issued by the draft officials concerning the number under arms. Although "definite figures" concerning the number serving Uncle Sam in World War I are not available, best estimates indicated that about 1,500 Pickaway countians were in service then.

The World War II total may be boosted by another 100 men during the next 10 days when two more contingents of draftees go to Columbus for physical examinations.

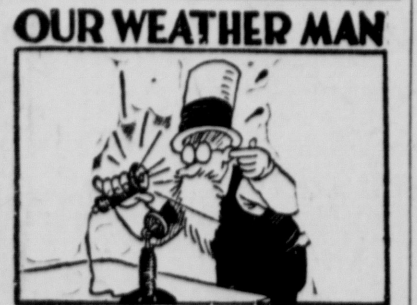

State Selective Service disclosed Thursday that 330,000 men from Ohio are now in service. The figure is an estimate based on best available information. The exact figure still is a military secret.

FEDERAL BAN ON STRIKES URGED BY OHIO C. OF C.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 12—Federal legislation should be enacted to eliminate strikes for the duration of the war, the Ohio Chamber of Commerce recommended today at the first business session of its two-day "War Conference."

The resolution condemning strikes, one of those passed as a basis for the chamber's policy for the coming year, declared that "harmonious relations between management and labor are essential to the successful prosecution of the war." It recommended:

- 1.—Compulsory mediation;
- 2.—A vote, under government supervision, of all workers before a strike is called;
- 3.—Prohibition of all boycotts;
- 4.—Limitation of picketing, and
- 5.—Severe penalties for violation of strike provisions, and authorization to the courts to issue injunctions against boycotts and mass picketing.

At Least 48 Hours Is Idea Of Defense Committee In Upper House

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—The Senate Defense committee today recommended lengthening of the week in the war industries to "at least 48 hours" where practicable, with overtime wages to be paid in War Bonds cashable only at the end of the war.

The committee also recommended a study of the possibility of suspension of the 40-hour week in non war industries as a possible answer to labor shortages in civilian industry, proposed creation of a "manpower czar" to have complete charge of manpower mobilization and Selective Service, and urged immediate halting of all recruiting by the armed services.

Headed by Sen. Harry S. Truman (D) Mo., the committee told the Senate that "even consideration of passage of any drastic compulsory legislation would be a mistake."

This statement was in line with a White House declaration that there is no immediate need for such legislation, but the committee's proposal for lengthening weekly work hours was in direct contrast with a statement of President Roosevelt at a recent press conference in which he voiced opposition to any such extension.

Other committee proposals included:

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 12—Premier MacKenzie King warned today "let no one imagine that this world conflict is nearing its close." Treason Trial Shows Haupt Was Poor Spy

CHICAGO, Nov. 12—From the Nazi point of view, the German government's choice in saboteurs became even more incredible today. The picture of Herbert Haupt as a bad risk in spy work has grown increasingly clear from the beginning of Chicago's treason trial of six German-born persons charged with aiding him.

Testimony has shown how the gabby 22-year-old youth rushed to the arms of his parents and friends in Chicago only two days after he landed in Florida last June 17 with four other submarine-borne Nazi agents. This was in direct violation of orders, according to fellow spy Ernest Peter Burger who testified earlier in the trial.

Unravels Secret

Haupt at first strutted about as a man of mystery, it has been shown, but then blandly proceeded to unravel his secret; he spoke in beer gardens of important messages from "high German military sources," and told the defendants about his submarine trip.

But the pay-off clue to the "courage" of this chosen representative of the "master race" came yesterday as the government laid the ground-work for the introduction of four pre-trial statements made by defendant Hans Max Haupt, father of the enemy agent. U. S. Attorney J. Albert Woll hoped to push into the record before.

Enactment Of Law Coming Too Late To Prevent December Call

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—The Senate today is expected to complete Congressional passage of the bill lowering the draft age from 20 to 18, and thus make 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 youths liable to military service.

Despite the fact that the Senate originally added the O'Daniel amendment, prohibiting sending of 18 and 19-year-olds into combat without a year's training, the Senate appeared ready to accept the conference report eliminating the provision.

First inducted 'teen old youths, however, may not enter the Army before Christmas.

In explaining that the original plan had been to induct them beginning January 1, Selective Service officials pointed to a statement by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, draft director, that it requires 30 to 40 days to "process" the draftees. Thus, if the bill does not become law until the last of the week, it would be virtually Christmas before induction could be completed.

Married Men Affected

"I think a lot of married men will be called in December," said Sen. Chan Gurney (R) S. D., author of the Senate bill. "With the delay in passage of the bill lowering the draft age, I doubt if younger men could be inducted in time to avoid the draft of married men."

Gurney predicted that selective service will make "terrific calls" for men during January and February. Under the expansion program, 3,300,000 will be added to the army by the end of 1943.

The number of available 18-and-19 year-olds is being cut daily by the heavy rate of enlistment in both army and navy.

NELSON WARNS AGAINST TOO MUCH OPTIMISM

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Allied successes in Egypt and North Africa should not be the basis for undue optimism, Donald Nelson, head of the War Production Board, protested today.

Declaring that Germany's military might is still great despite losses in Russia, Nelson said: "What is happening in Africa is only a beginning, while on the other side of the world we have only made the barest start..."

Nelson told a group of advertising chiefs that businessmen throughout the nation must gird themselves for a long war.

"We are going to be tried to the limit of our strength," he said. "The best we can do as a nation is going to be none too good."

Nelson said that the country would have to endure many further restrictions before it would be "stripped for action," in the battle against the Axis, but he assured that the future was "not wholly black either."

The WPB chief said there would be no restrictions on advertising which he termed "an essential part of our communications system." He advocated that manufacturers now engaged wholly in war work continue advertising to keep their names before the public in anticipation of their return to civilian markets.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Nov. 12

—Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower revealed today that his deputy commander, Maj. Gen. Mark W. Clark, made a daring first-hand survey of the French African situation before the American offensive was launched.

Clark and a party of seven officers, Eisenhower revealed, made a 15,000 mile round-trip utilizing almost every conceivable means of transportation to observe personally the temper of the French populace and the possibilities of effective American action.

Vichy radio announced today and as a result the German occupational forces have refrained from entering the Toulon area.

The broadcast said the threat to turn its guns on any aggressors had "caused the German authorities to decide that Toulon will not be occupied and that French warships will be safeguarded."

This announcement followed a day of conflicting reports as to the fate of the fleet at Toulon. Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of the North African expedition, had invited the Vichy fleet to join the allies. The Vichy announcement indicated these suggestions would be rejected—at least by that section of the fleet in French mainland bases.

Meanwhile two great naval battles were reported under way in the Mediterranean and the English channel. An unconfirmed dispatch to London said British and axis naval forces were locked in battle in the narrow strait between the Italian island of Sicily and Tunisia. Vichy reports said a mighty air and sea battle raged in the channel, but gave no further details.

FIVE DAY SHIP RECORD SET BY HENRY KAISER

RICHMOND, Cal., Nov. 12—A new shipbuilding record of five days was expected to be set today at the Richmond Yards of Henry J. Kaiser as thousands of workmen swarmed over the 10,000-ton merchant freighter Robert E. Peary.

Company officials were withholding final decision as to whether the ship would be launched today, five days after the keel was laid down at 12:01 a. m. Sunday. All but a few tons of the ship's weight had been placed at an early hour this morning and riggers continued hard at the job of fitting out the ship. Other workmen were installing various minor odds and ends.

The Richmond yard set out last Sunday to break the previous spectacular record of ten days from keel to launching set by the Portland, Ore., Kaiser yard. Within 24 hours of the time the keel was laid, the Peary was nearly one-fifth completed. Speedy construction of the vessel was accomplished by the Kaiser method of pre-fabricating sections and then placing the sections into a composite whole.

The French fleet at Toulon in southern France has served notice that it "will resist any aggression", the ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Nov. 12—Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower revealed today that his deputy commander, Maj. Gen. Mark W. Clark, made a daring first-hand survey of the French African situation before the American offensive was launched.

Clark and a party of seven officers, Eisenhower revealed, made a 15,000 mile round-trip utilizing almost every conceivable means of transportation to observe personally the temper of the French people and the possibilities of effective American action.

Vichy radio announced today and as a result the German occupational forces have refrained from entering the Toulon area.

The broadcast said the threat to turn its guns on any aggressors had "caused the German authorities to decide that Toulon will not be occupied and that French warships will be safeguarded."

This announcement followed a day of conflicting reports as to the fate of the fleet at Toulon. Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of the North African expedition, had invited the Vichy fleet to join the allies. The Vichy announcement indicated these suggestions would be rejected—at least by that section of the fleet in French mainland bases.

Meanwhile two great naval battles were reported under way in the Mediterranean and the English channel. An unconfirmed dispatch to London said British and axis naval forces were locked in battle in the narrow strait between the Italian island of Sicily and Tunisia. Vichy reports said a mighty air and sea battle raged in the channel, but gave no further details.

Race Continues

Meantime American and axis forces were believed to be racing to establish footholds in the vital Tunisian ports of Bizerte and Tunis. A spokesman at allied headquarters (Continued on Page Two) quarters admitted that troops were being sent to Tunisia to meet the reported axis landings of airborne troops during the last few days. The R.A.F. disclosed that at least 38 axis planes have been knocked out in forays near Tunis.

While Berlin denied that axis troops were in the strategic North African colony, it was clear that Hitler must make a move to prevent the allies from establishing themselves there. Tunis and Bizerte would give the Anglo American expeditionary force excellent naval and air bases which would set up a serious threat to the Italian islands of Sicily and Sardinia.

Final capitulation of Morocco and Algeria freed American and British land and air sea forces to proceed against Tunisia and eventually against Tripoli in the Italian colony of Libya.

And it was pointed out in military circles that the Axis could be expected to attempt to get troop convoys to Tunisia, and that the Allies would do all possible to prevent this move. Therefore, a naval action in the central Mediterranean would not be surprising.

The tactical purpose of the reported channel battle was not clear. The British admiralty made no comment on the Vichy report, but it was recalled that a considerable German naval force had been sighted yesterday moving south from Norway bases.

Flight of the beaten Axis forces in North Africa has carried the main body of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's army well past Tobruk, dispatches from the front indicated today.

In an effort to hamper pursuit by the British eighth army, the German command threw increased air forces into the desert battle, including squadrons of Stuka divebombers. Allied fighters shot down 22 enemy planes during Wednesday, including at least 11 Stukas. American pilots were credited with shooting down at least three Stukas, and probably destroyed four others which were heavily damaged.

Pockets of enemy resistance were still maintained today in Egypt and at strategic points between the Libyan border and Tobruk. While these were being methodically mopped up, they had not been able to slow down the allied pursuit of Rommel's retreating columns.

Japanese forces entrapped by Australian infantrymen near Oivi in the New Guinea jungle were reported today to be facing annihilation as allied forces closed in on the enemy troops blocking the way to the main Japanese coastal base at Buna.

A communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said the enemy has been encircled in the vicinity of Oivi and Gorari which is six miles to the east. The Japanese have been driven from their main defense positions by the steady advance of the Australian jungle fighters aided by steady and continuous strafings and bombings of the enemy-held area by allied planes.

Japanese losses were running high. The communique said enemy dead totalled more than 300 in the last three days' fighting. Allied planes continued to bomb the enemy's rear positions and the highway leading north

Killed 200 Japs On Guadalcanal

MARINE Private Albert Schmid of Philadelphia, 22 (in bed), recounts his battle at Guadalcanal against a Japanese contingent which attempted to cross the Tenaru river last August 21st. Handling a blistering hot machine gun he killed 200 of the advancing Japs before one of them managed to toss a hand grenade which exploded in his face, blinding one eye. He is shown at a San Diego, Cal., hospital where he is recuperating. At right is Corporal Leroy Diamond of New York City who fed Schmid's gun with ammunition until being wounded.

Soviet forces smashed the enemy on four sectors of the Volga-Caucasus front and inflicted heavy casualties in aggressive offensive actions, dispatches from the front reported today.

Russians Doing Well
While the defenders of Stalingrad repelled several German attacks which cost the enemy three hundred dead, Russian armies forged ahead on the fronts northwest of Stalingrad, northeast of the Black Sea port of Tuapse, and in the Nalchik area of the central Caucasus.

The high command issued a communique at noon stating that Nazi attacks in the Stalingrad area, against an inhabited locality northwest of the Volga city and southeast of Nalchik in the mid-Caucasus had been repelled.

Lively artillery duels were said to have taken place on the northwestern front where Soviet forces carried out numerous successful raids.

sion in the bill that high school pupils, called for induction in the second half of the school year, shall be deferred until the end of the year. A large number may be inducted before the second semester begins in most high schools.

Some members of the senate were expected to raise the question as to whether the Tydings amendment, providing for deferment of agricultural workers, in a "work or fight" provision.

Under the amendment, draft registrants found necessary to, and regularly engaged in, an agricultural occupation essential to the war effort shall be deferred from the draft "so long as he remains so engaged and until such time as a satisfactory replacement can be obtained."

The amendment then added that if any person deferred under this provision leaves the agricultural occupation, his local selective service board "shall reclassify such registrant in a class immediately available for military service" unless the board acts upon an appeal for deferment.

Some members believe that the effect would be that a married farmer who quits the farm would become immediately liable for military service providing he is of draft age.

850 SHIPS IN GREAT AFRICAN INVASION FORCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—The size of the combined American and British armada which made possible the allied invasion of French Morocco and Algeria was disclosed today by Captain Oliver Lyttelton, British Minister of Production.

Speaking in New York at an advertising dinner, Lyttelton said that a total of 850 ships—500 troop and supply vessels and 350 warships—had taken part in the operations. He described the attack "as the greatest amphibious operation in history."

BOND THIEF SOUGHT

Circleville police are hunting the person who stole a $25 War Bond from the dresser drawer of the room rented by Jess F. Chandler in a West Main street rooming house. Chandler told Police Chief W. F. McCready Thursday that the bond had been taken and that he had been told a woman had tried to cash it at a Circleville bank. Police are trying to find the woman of whom they have a description.

America." He said labor wants to see our country win the war.

If there is one agency in Washington that needs "constructive" reorganization it is the War Production Board, he said, warning that a "mere re-shuffling" of the WPB, giving labor "advisory positions," will not be enough.

Murray and other speakers alleged that industry's top-heavy representation on various Washington government agencies is hampering the war effort.

The resolution adopted by the convention said in part:

"National mobilization demands a nation-wide planning and utilization of all the material and manpower resources of the nation. Such a mobilization requires a centralized administrative control of all of the resources and economic policies of the nation.

"The confusion and conflict now raging in the absence of a national planning and centralized administrative control of our war program must be ended immediately.

"A single administrative body should be established incorporating the activities of war supply, war manpower and of economic stabilization. The recommendations to this effect, contained in the recent report of the Tolson investigating committee and the Tolson-Pepper bills must be put into effect with the utmost speed which can be done through executive action."

SCOTLAND GETS FIRST SIGHT OF BUSY ELEANOR

GLASGOW, Nov. 12—Scotland had had its first sight of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt in action today. The American President's wife arrived by air from North Ireland at dusk Wednesday and plunged immediately into a six hour tour that wound up after midnight with a talk to 1,000 girls on the night shift of an arms factory. During the evening Mrs. Roosevelt opened an American Seaman's Home and made a broadcast to the United States.

The billion-dollar paper industry America owes its modern development to an insect, Frederick Keller, inventor of the paper pulp machinery, first watched a wasp chew wood into pulp and spread the paste to dry.

LABOR SHORTAGE REAL PUZZLE TO OHIO'S FARMERS

Shortage of labor appears to be the biggest problem facing U. S. farmers in 1943, and Professor V. R. Wertz, rural economist, Ohio State University, says reports at the National Farm Outlook Conference in Washington, showed that Ohio still has proportionately more farm help than the Northeast and Pacific Coast areas.

The consensus of opinion of those attending the conference was that 1,500,000 more farm workers would be needed in 1943 to hold farm production at the 1942 level. Weather conditions were very favorable this year and that luck may not continue through the next harvest.

Sources of extra help on farms are boys reaching working age, older people back in harness, more women doing farm work, part time work by persons living on farms but employed in factories, more children working, and assistance from city residents. It may also be possible to shift farmers from present low producing areas to farms which are potentially productive.

In 1941, one-third of all U. S. farms produced less than $400 worth of farm produce per farm. The reasons for the low yields may have been poor land, lack of equipment, or bad management. The operators of these farms, if placed on good land properly equipped, might be much more effective in producing food or fiber.

That Extra Something!

SPECIALIZING in any job is important. And, it takes only one taste of ice-cold Coca-Cola to tell you that its makers have specialized in refreshment for years. They created this utterly different drink 57 years ago. Today it's still individual—and delightfully so.

Note the difference in taste. You can sense the special blend of flavors. Sip again. Your thirst is gone before you know it, but something else arrives. This is refreshment. And it's refreshment that goes into energy—quickly—pleasantly.

When you've finished, you know you've enjoyed a drink made to a standard of quality, not to a standard of price. Folks the country over feel the same way about it. They appreciate the genuine... the real thing... Coke... Coca-Cola.

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called Coke. Coca-Cola and Coke mean the same thing... the real thing... "coming from a single source, and well known to the community".

Boy and girl, recreation and refreshment! There's two for company and two more for happiness and satisfaction. You know refreshment's first name, of course. Everybody knows Coke.

In many cases operators of marginal farms would need a short training course in livestock management or in handling power machinery before being placed on better farms. Agricultural schools are equipped to give this type of training.

Several weeks ago state university officials started a rural labor investigation in Pickaway county, picking Walnut township as a typical rural area. At conclusion of the study, which required several days, the men conducting it removed to other counties.

A report of the rural labor program will be made sometime after December 1. F. K. Blair, Pickaway county extension agent, was informed.

Studebaker says:
"Wartime care will save your car"

Government regulation of driving makes it clear that every one of our cars and trucks is vital to the nation's need for essential wartime transportation.

Less driving means more danger from corrosion, sticking parts and leaking engine gaskets. Slower speeds make small irregularities of engine performance more bothersome.

Your car should be lubricated and inspected on the basis of time rather than mileage intervals. Use your car carefully. Give it regular maintenance. This is the best way to preserve it. Simple, yes, but important.

Studebaker dealers are engaged in a wartime service program—to assist you—regardless of the make of car or truck you own.

BARNEY BARUCH AIDS PRESIDENT ON MANPOWER

Industries Czar Of First World War Working
Alone On Solution

SCANS McNUTT PROGRAM

Transfer Of Workers To War Effort Jobs Seen
As Major Need

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 — Bernard (Barney) M. Baruch, World War I industries czar, today was reported to be actively engaged in advising President Roosevelt on a solution to the nation's manpower problem.

Although the manpower crisis bears resemblance to the once criticized rubber tangle, it is said that Baruch does not plan to summon his two colleagues together and make a "committee" investigation of manpower problems.

President James B. Conant, of Harvard, and President Karl T. Compton, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, assisted Baruch in the rubber study.

In this instance, however, the white-haired elder statesman reportedly is working alone, consulting with Paul V. McNutt, war manpower commission chairman, and other officials and conferring not infrequently with Mr. Roosevelt.

Studying Report

At present, Baruch is engaged in studying the report submitted by McNutt's 14-member labor-management advisory committee which had studied the manpower situation for five months. The report was submitted to President Roosevelt by McNutt.

Baruch confirms only that he is "interested" in the manpower situation.

"I am interested in everything that affects the welfare of our country," he said.

Baruch said that "nobody has asked me" to make a study on manpower similar to the rubber-committee inquiry.

Have Enough Information

"They've plenty of people studying things," he said. "I should think they would have enough information on the manpower situation."

He was asked whether he meant that there had been too much "studying" and not enough action. "Well, I wouldn't say that," Baruch replied. "I'm offering no gratuitous comment on the situation."

Baruch is known to feel that the transfer of workers from non-essential jobs to positions in the war effort is one of the major needs in the manpower program. McNutt reported recently, however, that 90 percent of the workers asked to voluntarily change jobs has refused.

On this major issue, however, the labor-management committee's report merely stated that such transfers should be "accelerated" and that the "hesitancy" of workers to shift from non-essential jobs to war work should be removed.

There might be more interest in the Caucasus, seeing that it's where most Americans come from, away back.

PATRICK GAINS STATE PRAISE AS COYOTE KILLER

Feat of Irvin Patrick of near Circleville in eliminating the only coyote pack in Ohio's history was lauded Thursday by L. C. Bailey, law enforcement chief for the State Conservation and Natural Resources Commission.

Patrick, who is aiding Conservation Officer Clarence Francis in the Pickaway county district during the game season, recently trapped a pack of coyotes out of existence in the Lucas, Henry and Wood county areas. News of the catch was announced here two weeks ago.

Farmers discovered the pack through its raids on chickens, ducks, turkeys and sheep, but they believed wolves were on the loose.

Patrick was assigned, Bailey said, because he formerly worked for the Conservation Department in Colorado where such animals are common.

"From farmers' descriptions of the animals Patrick concluded they were coyotes and not wolves," Bailey declared. "He found their tracks and set concealed traps on which he placed an odorless, thick fluid and the first night the traps were out he trapped a female weighing more than 50 pounds." Patrick is quite proud of the pelt taken from this animal.

Three others, all pups, were trapped in the vicinity, and a farmer there killed the fourth.

"Where the coyotes came from isn't known," Bailey said, expressing belief that possibly the female had escaped from a zoo or private owner.

BARNEY BARUCH AIDS PRESIDENT ON MANPOWER

Industries Czar Of First World War Working Alone On Solution

SCANS McNUTT PROGRAM

Transfer Of Workers To War Effort Jobs Seen As Major Need

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—Bernard (Barney) M. Baruch, World War I industries czar, today was reported to be actively engaged in advising President Roosevelt on a solution to the nation's manpower problem.

Although the manpower crisis bears resemblance to the one criticized rubber tangle, it is said that Baruch does not plan to summon his two colleagues together and make a "committee" investigation of manpower problems.

President James B. Conant, of Harvard, and President Karl T. Compton, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, assisted Baruch in the rubber study.

In this instance, however, the white-haired elder statesman reportedly is working alone, consulting with Paul V. McNutt, war manpower commission chairman, and other officials and conferring not infrequently with Mr. Roosevelt.

Studying Report

At present, Baruch is engaged in studying the report submitted by McNutt's 14-member labor-management advisory committee which had studied the manpower situation for five months. The report was submitted to President Roosevelt by McNutt.

Baruch confirms only that he is "interested" in the manpower situation.

"I am interested in everything that affects the welfare of our country," he said.

Baruch said that "nobody has asked me" to make a study on manpower similar to the rubber-committee inquiry.

Have Enough Information

"They've plenty of people studying things," he said. "I should think they would have enough information on the manpower situation."

He was asked whether he meant that there had been too much "studying" and not enough action. "Well, I wouldn't say that," Baruch replied. "I'm offering no gratuitous comment on the situation."

Baruch is known to feel that the transfer of workers from non-essential jobs to positions in the war effort is one of the major needs in the manpower program. McNutt reported recently, however, that 90 percent of the workers asked to voluntarily change jobs has refused.

On this major issue, however, the labor-management committee's report merely stated that such transfers should be "accelerated" and that the "hesitancy" of workers to shift from non-essential jobs to war work should be removed.

There might be more interest in the Caucasus, seeing that it's where most Americans come from, away back.

PATRICK GAINS STATE PRAISE AS COYOTE KILLER

Feat of Irvin Patrick of near Circleville in eliminating the only coyote pack in Ohio's history was lauded Thursday by L. C. Bailey, law enforcement chief for the State Conservation and Natural Resources Commission.

Patrick, who is aiding Conservation Officer Clarence Francis in the Pickaway county district during the game season, recently trapped a pack of coyotes out of existence in the Lucas, Henry and Wood county areas. News of the catch was announced here two weeks ago.

Farmers discovered the pack through its raids on chickens, ducks, turkeys and sheep, but they believed wolves were on the loose.

Patrick was assigned, Bailey said, because he formerly worked for the Conservation Department in Colorado where such animals are common.

"From farmers' descriptions of the animals Patrick concluded they were coyotes and not wolves," Bailey declared. "He found their tracks and set concealed traps on which he placed an odorless, thick fluid and the first night the traps were out he trapped a female weighing more than 50 pounds." Patrick is quite proud of the pelt taken from this animal.

Three others, all pups, were trapped in the vicinity, and a farmer there killed the fourth.

"Where the coyotes came from isn't known," Bailey said, expressing belief that possibly the female had escaped from a zoo or private owner.

ALSAB'S GREAT HEART BOOSTS WINNING TOTAL

Colt From Other Side Of Tracks Wins Victory Handicap, $6,850

ANKLE IS WRENCHED

Racer To Be Shipped Back To Kentucky Following Fine Campaign

BY JACK MAHON
NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Maybe we'll see him again, and maybe we won't, but whatever the future brings man, let's wave our hats in fond salute to little Alsab, the colt from the other side of the tracks who came out of nowhere to capture the heart of racing America.

The Sab is going home this week; home to a new, spacious and luxurious farm down where the bluegrass grows in Lexington, Ky., and he's leaving behind him a story that for courage and gallantry will probably not be equalled until this war-torn world has righted itself once again.

Alsab won his last race of a great three-year-old career out at Belmont Parkway yesterday. Won it on practically three legs, when he came from last place to take the $6,850 mile and one quarter Victory Handicap by three quarters of a length over Boxy, with Bon Jour another longshot, third and Tola Rose fourth.

The victory pushed the Sab's year's earnings to $234,615 but still left him a couple of thousand dollars short of the top mark established by the Greentree stable's Shut Out, who won $238,972 before being retired.

Rounding the stretch turn, after moving up gradually, he went after the leaders, Tola Rose and Boxy, and was getting to them when he stepped in a hole and wrenched his ankle. No one in the crowded stands knew Alsab didn't let them. He kept right on running just as if he knew this was his valdictory for 1942 and he didn't stop until he had passed them all and was going away, by himself under the victory wire.

Say so long and happy grazing to a real champ. A racing horse's champion if you get what we mean.

Tigers To Close Fine Season Against Lions

Several hundred Circleville football fans are expected to travel to Washington C. H. Friday night to witness the closing football game of the 1941 season when the Red and Black takes on the Blue Lions coached by Jerry Kissell and George Miraben.

The contest, win, lose or draw, ends what has been a highly successful season, the Tigers winning six and losing one to date. A victory Friday night, not at all an impossibility, would give the Red and Black a deadlock for the South Central Ohio league title with Washington C. H. and Greenfield.

Despite injuries and sickness the Tigers will present their full team in hopes of bumping the highly-favored Blue Lions, victors last week over Bexley in a 14-13 thriller. Coach Roy Black has indicated that his backfield will be Bach, Shea, Heath and Smallwood, with a possibility that Emmett Dade may be at left half with Shea at fullback and Smallwood at tackle. The remainder of the lineup would have Friedman and Jim Dade at ends, Wells and Don Sowers or

LOU NOVA WILL MEET MAURIELLA ON DEC. 11

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Lou Nova, veteran California heavyweight who is making another comeback, next will meet Tami Mauriello, young New York puncher, on December 11, with the winner slated to oppose the survivor of a bout between Jimmy Bivins, of Cleveland, and Lee Savold of Des Moines.

In his only start since he was stopped by Savold last May, Nova knocked out Ernie Nordman this week.

In his last start, Mauriello defeated Savold, and probably will be established as favorite over Nova on the basis of their past performances against a common foe.

Nova will leave California on November 20 for the East and immediately on his arrival will begin training for Mauriello.

CAMP GRANT, Ill., Nov. 12—The Great Lakes battle wagon flew its victory flag today, as a result of its 33 to 0 triumph over the Camp Grant warriors at Bell Bowl.

The bluejackets' fleet got under full steam in the second period when it rolled up three touchdowns. Bruce Smith, John Popov, Steve Belchick, Ed Heffernan and Ed Norris accounted for the Navy's touchdowns.

Pvt. Stanley Stasica appeared to be the only soldier who gave the sailors any trouble, but even he enjoyed only occasional forays into Great Lakes territory.

ILLINI STARS BACK ON TEAM

Engel And Dufelmeier To Be Ready For Contest With Buckeyes

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 12—With Roy Hoppe, reserve quarterback, lost to the squad because of injuries, Illinois took a light workout today before leaving for Columbus to meet Ohio State. Right End Elmer Engel and Left Halfback Art Dufelmeier were back in uniform and were expected to be ready Saturday.

COLUMBUS, — George Slusser was working to the right halfback spot today to support Les Horvath, regular at that position, as the Ohio State Buckeyes tapered off for the Illinois battle. The Buckeyes drilled on ball handling in an effort to prevent any ball stealing for which the Illini are noted.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Notre Dame worked on new plays today in preparation for the Michigan invasion. All members of the squad except the injured halfbacks, Russell Ashbaugh and Owen Evans, took part in yesterday's intensive drill. The Irish fullback battery of Corwin Clatt, Jerry Cowbig and Jim Mello was in top-shape for Saturday's clash.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — The "no admittance" sign hung on the Michigan practice field today as the Wolverines worked hard on Notre Dame plays and on a new attack. Warren Yaap, sophomore halfback who is recovering from pneumonia, was lost to the squad for the season.

MADISON, Wis. — Wisconsin polished up its defense against the Northwestern attack today and then worked on its own strategy for Saturday's encounter at Evanston. Coach Harry Stuhldreher appeared to be concerned over the left end position.

EVANSTON, Ill. — Northwestern's Wildcats were pronounced

ALSAB'S GREAT HEART BOOSTS WINNING TOTAL

Colt From Other Side Of Tracks Wins Victory Handicap, $6,850

ANKLE IS WRENCHED

Racer To Be Shipped Back To Kentucky Following Fine Campaign

BY JACK MAHON
NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Maybe we'll see him again, and maybe we won't, but whatever the future brings man, let's wave our hats in fond salute to little Alsab, the colt from the other side of the tracks who came out of nowhere to capture the heart of racing America.

The Sab is going home this week; home to a new, spacious and luxurious farm down where the bluegrass grows in Lexington, Ky., and he's leaving behind him a story that for courage and gallantry will probably not be equalled until this war-torn world has righted itself once again.

Alsab won his last race of a great three-year-old career out at Belmont Parkway yesterday. Won it on practically three legs, when he came from last place to take the $6,850 mile and one quarter Victory Handicap by three quarters of a length over Boysey, with Bon Jour, another longshot, third and Tola Rose fourth.

The victory pushed the Sab's years' earnings to $234,615 but still left him a couple of thousand dollars short of the top mark established by the Greentree stable's Shut Out, who won $238,972 before being retired.

Rounding the stretch turn, after moving up gradually, he went after the leaders, Tola Rose and Boysey, and was getting to them when he stepped in a hole and wrenched his ankle. No one in the crowded stands knew. Alsab didn't let them. He kept right on running just as if he knew this was his valdeictory for 1942 and he didn't stop until he had passed them all and was going away, by himself under the victory wire.

Say so long and happy grazing to a real champ. A racing horse's champion if you get what we mean.

Tigers To Close Fine Season Against Lions

Several hundred Circleville football fans are expected to travel to Washington C. H. Friday night to witness the closing football game of the 1941 season when the Red and Black takes on the Blue Lions coached by Jerry Kussell and George Miraben.

The contest, win, lose or draw, ends what has been a highly successful season, the Tigers winning six and losing one to date. A victory Friday night, not at all an impossibility, would give the Red and Black a deadlock for the South Central Ohio league title with Washington C. H. and Greenfield.

Despite injuries and sickness the Tigers will present their full team in hopes of bumping the highly-favored Blue Lions, victors last week over Bexley in a 14-13 thriller. Coach Roy Black has indicated that his backfield will be Bach, Shea, Heath and Smallwood, with a possibility that Emmett Dade may be at left half with Shea at fullback and Smallwood at tackle. The remainder of the lineup would have Friedman and Jim Dade at ends, Wells and Don Sowers or

LOU NOVA WILL MEET MAURIELLA ON DEC. 11

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Lou Nova, veteran California heavyweight who is making another comeback, next will meet Tami Mauriello, young New York puncher, on December 11, with the winner slated to oppose the survivor of a bout between Jimmy Bivins, of Cleveland, and Lee Savold of Des Moines.

In his only start since he was stopped by Savold last May, Nova knocked out Ernie Nordman this week.

In his last start, Mauriello defeated Savold, and probably will be established as favorite over Nova on the basis of their past performances against a common foe.

Nova will leave California on November 20 for the East and immediately on his arrival will begin training for Mauriello.

Pvt. Stanley Stasica appeared to be the only soldier who gave the sailors any trouble, but even he enjoyed only occasional forays into Great Lakes territory.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 12—With Roy Hoppe, reserve quarterback, lost to the squad because of injuries, Illinois took a light workout today before leaving for Columbus to meet Ohio State. Right End Elmer Engel and Left Halfback Art Dufelmeier were back in uniform and were expected to be ready Saturday.

COLUMBUS, — George Shusser was working to the right-halfback spot today to support Les Horvath, regular at that position, as the Ohio State Buckeyes tapered off for the Illinois battle. The Buckeyes drilled on ball handling in an effort to prevent any ball stealing for which the Illini are noted.

All members of the squad except the injured halfbacks, Russell Ashbaugh and Owen Evans, took part in yesterday's intensive drill. The Irish fullback battery of Corwin Clatt, Jerry Cowbig and Jim Mello was in top-shape for Saturday's clash.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — The "no admittance" sign hung on the Michigan practice field today as the Wolverines worked hard on Notre Dame plays and on a new attack. Warren Yaap, sophomore halfback who is recovering from pneumonia, was lost to the squad for the season.

MADISON, Wis. — Wisconsin polished up its defense against the Northwestern attack today and then worked on its own strategy for Saturday's encounter at Evanston. Coach Harry Stuhldreher appeared to be concerned over the left end position.

EVANSTON, Ill. — Northwestern's Wildcats were pronounced

AMERICA LOSING WAR IN PACIFIC, MAAS DECLARES

Marine Colonel, Just Back From Solomons, Thinks People Are Misled

"WHOLE TRUTH" LACKING

Four American Cruisers Sunk In Eight Minutes Without Defense

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 12 — Rep. Melvin J. Maas (R) Minn., who recently returned to the United States from active duty in the Pacific as a Marine Corps reserve colonel, today strongly urged creation of a single coordinated war plan backed up by a unified command, declaring that this is necessary for victory.

Maas, who was decorated for "gallantry in action" on Guadalcanal, called for this action after he told an Armistice Day rally that America is losing the war in the Pacific and charged that Washington has misled the American people about some of the U. S. victories over the Japanese.

Must Arouse People

The outspoken congressman declared that the American people are not aroused to a complete will to win because Washington has failed to tell the whole truth.

Washington "doesn't think you're old enough to know the facts," he added, but unless the facts are given to the people, they will never be aroused to the point that is necessary to win the war against Japan.

Maas said that during the early stages of the Solomons battle the Japs sunk four American cruisers in eight minutes without the U. S. ships returning a single shot. He said that this was "one of the worst naval disasters in our history," comparable to Pearl Harbor, because the American fleet was forewarned this time and did nothing to defend itself.

Raid on Tokyo

The Minnesotan also told the rally, sponsored by the American Legion, that while the bombing raid on Tokyo, led by Maj. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle, was successful "not one single plane ever got back," although many of the flyers did.

Maas charged that one battle of the Pacific was described as an American victory although the U. S. losses actually were heavier than the Japs. He made no identification of this battle.

At another point in his speech, Maas said that the American Marines were "dumped" on the Solomons and left to virtually look out for themselves for days. He charged that they had to subsist on captured Japanese rations and even were forced to use captured enemy artillery and ammunition.

Brutally Frank

Declaring that he was being "brutally frank—I've seen things in the last four or five months that makes me frank—things both in the jungles of Guadalcanal and the jungles of Washington," he added:

"We're losing the war, we've lost it every day since Pearl Harbor. I hate to be a killjoy when you're all excited over the news from Africa, but it's possible that we will lose this war in the end. You don't believe it? I didn't either—until I saw the Japanese in action."

"The Japs are not in this thing for marbles. They want to win. They have had greater superiority in numbers of men, ships, guns and strategy and they've been smarter so far. But their greatest asset is their mental attitude. They've been preparing for this war for 40 years. They're offensive-minded, we're still defense-minded. The Japs are tough, hard, courageous and they have no rules. The only way to beat 'em is to kill them."

WPB ORDER HITS COURT AND MAIN HOLIDAY DISPLAY

War Production Board's decision announced this week that no outdoor Christmas displays will be permitted this year is an effort to save manpower, needed materials and electricity may mean that Circleville's Court and Main street display, always one of the most handsome in central Ohio, will not be put up.

Chamber of Commerce officials are working on the possibility of going ahead with the decoration, but indications are that the ban on such decorations will prevent its being placed this year.

Columbus Chamber of Commerce is going ahead with its decoration plan since all contracts for materials have been signed for a long while. However, a ban against use of electricity for the lights would mean the end of the program, at least for this year.

The outdoor decorations ban does not affect indoor Christmas trees and lighted trees may be used in homes, clubs and stores.

Although a milk shortage is said to be threatening in Columbus and Franklin county with city board of health officials seeking ways and means of averting a scarcity, Pickaway county dairies have not yet experienced any decline in supply other than the usual seasonal slide.

The Franklin county shortage has become so threatening, health officials say, that they are calling conferences to look for a way out of the difficulty.

Officials cite as the principal reason for the shortage the fact that dairy herds are being butchered for beef because of a lack of farm labor to tend the herds. Many rural workers have gone into defense plants and others have been drafted into the armed forces.

Despite this declaration by Franklin county farm leaders declared Thursday that while this might have been the case in some instances no milk shortage has developed because of it, at least locally.

The seasonal shortage is apparent now because herds have been deprived of green grass diet but have not been fed silage stored to tide them over during the winter.

Highway Bureau Gives Hints On Gas Saving

To help Ohio motorists get the utmost mileage out of a gallon of gasoline when rationing becomes effective December 1, the Ohio department of highways Thursday made public the practical results of exhaustive tests carried out under the watchful eyes of engineers in the division of traffic and safety.

These recommendations came from Hal G. Sours, director of highways, as a part of Gov. John W. Bricker's all-out for victory program.

The suggestions to motorists for conserving gasoline follow: Under no circumstances exceed the 35-mile speed limit. Speed is the greatest consumer of gasoline.

Accelerate gently. Pumping the accelerator wastes gasoline.

Shut off the motor when the car is parked, when traffic is stalled, when waiting at a railroad crossing, or elsewhere.

Shift from second gear into high without delay. Low gear operation wastes gasoline.

Time the speed of the car with traffic lights. When a red light shows ahead take the foot off the accelerator and coast, letting the motor act as a brake. The light frequently will change to green before the car reaches it, saving another stop and start.

If the car is not equipped with an automatic choke, use the choke as infrequently as possible.

Do not weave in and out of traffic. Weaving wastes gasoline because of rapid acceleration required to pass other cars.

See that brakes are always properly adjusted. Too tight adjustment, or dragging, increases gasoline consumption and shortens the life of brake linings.

If the clutch slips have it immediately repaired. Riding the clutch pedal is a quick method of causing the clutch to slip.

See that spark plugs are always clean. Ten percent loss of mileage can be attributed to dirty or worn spark plugs.

Always have the fan belt properly adjusted. Constant slowing down or stopping will overheat the motor if the fan belt adjustment is faulty. Overheating the motor wastes gasoline and may result in scored cylinders in the motor, or other engine damage.

Have the car properly lubricated regularly. Adequate lubrication retards friction, and friction steals power and wastes gasoline.

Have the entire fuel system checked. To obtain maximum mileage it is necessary that the carburetor be adjusted to perform economically.

"It is the belief of our engineers that the suggestions we offer will go a long way in conserving gasoline, wear and tear on a car and costly repair bills," Director Sours said. "The tests we made were under all conditions of driving and if Ohio's motorists follow the suggestions we believe they will conserve gasoline and their cars for victory."

LEEVE BEING REPAIRED

TRANSPORTATION SURVEY

COLLEGE STATION, Tex.—A survey of transportation facilities for farm labor is being made by the Texas USDA board for 1943 production, Chairman B. F. Vance has announced. Included in the survey are effect of tire rationing on movement and size of labor crews; percent of cars and trucks totally disabled because of lack of tires; possibility of using school buses for transporting agricultural workers within counties; and the possibility of renting trucks for transportation locally of workers.

AMERICA LOSING WAR IN PACIFIC, MAAS DECLARES

Marine Colonel, Just Back From Solomons, Thinks People Are Misled

"WHOLE TRUTH" LACKING
Four American Cruisers Sunk in Eight Minutes Without Defense

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 12 — Rep. Melvin J. Maas (R) Minn., who recently returned to the United States from active duty in the Pacific as a Marine Corps reserve colonel, today strongly urged creation of a single coordinated war plan backed up by a unified command, declaring that this is necessary for victory.

Maas, who was decorated for "gallantry in action" on Guadalcanal, called for this action after he told an Armistice Day rally that America is losing the war in the Pacific and charged that Washington has misled the American people about some of the U. S. victories over the Japanese.

Must Arouse People

The outspoken congressman declared that the American people are not aroused to a complete will to win because Washington has failed to tell the whole truth.

Washington "doesn't think you're old enough to know the facts," he added, but unless the facts are given to the people, they will never be aroused to the point that is necessary to win the war against Japan.

Maas said that during the early stages of the Solomons battle the Japs sunk four American cruisers in eight minutes without the U. S. ships returning a single shot. He said that this was "one of the worst naval disasters in our history," comparable to Pearl Harbor, because the American fleet was forewarned this time and did nothing to defend itself.

Raid on Tokyo

The Minnesotan also told the rally, sponsored by the American Legion, that while the bombing raid on Tokyo, led by Maj. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle, was successful "not one single plane ever got back," although many of the flyers did.

Maas charged that one battle of the Pacific was described as an American victory although the U. S. losses actually were heavier than the Japs. He made no identification of this battle.

At another point in his speech, Maas said that the American Marines were "dumped" on the Solomons and left to virtually look out for themselves for days. He charged that they had to subsist on captured Japanese rations and even were forced to use captured enemy artillery and ammunition.

Brutally Frank

Declaring that he was being "brutally frank—I've seen things in the last four or five months that makes me frank—things both in the jungles of Guadalcanal and the jungles of Washington," he added:

"We're losing the war, we've lost it every day since Pearl Harbor. I hate to be a killjoy when you're all excited over the news from Africa, but it's possible that we will lose this war in the end. You don't believe it? I didn't either—until I saw the Japanese in action."

"The Japs are not in this thing for marbles. They want to win. They have had greater superiority in numbers of men, ships, guns and strategy and they've been smarter so far. But their greatest asset is their mental attitude. They've been preparing for this war for 40 years. They're offensive-minded, we're still defensive-minded. The Japs are tough, hard, courageous and they have no rules. The only way to beat 'em is to kill them."

War Production Board's decision announced this week that no outdoor Christmas displays will be permitted this year is an effort to save manpower, needed materials and electricity may mean that Circleville's Court and Main street display, always one of the most handsome in central Ohio, will not be put up.

Chamber of Commerce officials are working on the possibility of going ahead with the decoration, but indications are that the ban on such decorations will prevent its being placed this year.

Columbus Chamber of Commerce is going ahead with its decoration plan since all contracts for materials have been signed for a long while. However, a ban against use of electricity for the lights would mean the end of the program, at least for this year.

The outdoor decorations ban does not affect indoor Christmas trees and lighted trees may be used in homes, clubs and stores.

David Glick of Circleville township, who enlisted in the U. S. Air Cadets two weeks ago, was sworn in as a member of the corps Tuesday at Patterson field, Fairfield. He is employed at the Circleville Oil Co. and will continue his work until called for training. Mr. Glick and his wife, the former Edith Dunkle, are living with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Stanley Glick, of Walnut Creek pike, where they have been since disposing of their farm stock early in the fall. They had been farming the Russell Palm land in Circleville township.

Private Loren E. Neff, son of Pearl Neff, Orient RFD, is in foreign service, his parents have been informed. His new address is Private Loren E. Neff, 35404550, 37th Signal Company, Service Group, APO 923, care of postmaster San Francisco, Cal.

Private Clarence E. Miller has been transferred from Fort Benning, Ga., to an engineering training company at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

Pat Kirwin, of Columbus, former resident of Circleville, is taking officers' training at Fort Benning, Ga.

Corporal Walter C. May is spending an eight-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. May, East Franklin street. He is stationed at Pope field, Fort Bragg, N. C.

Eugene E. Burgett of 1600 North High street, Columbus, formerly of Circleville, has been assigned to St. Petersburg, Fla., for training in the U. S. Army Air Force.

Private Donald Olen White, who is home on a 12-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don J. White, of South Scioto street, is now in the post finance department at Camp Livingston, Alexandria, La.

Private George Rader of the radio school, Madison, Wis., wrote his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rader of East Mill street, that the shower of birthday greetings coming to him through publication of his birth date in The Circleville Herald was a complete surprise and greatly appreciated. He was still receiving cards several days after his birthday anniversary.

MILK FLOW IS CONTINUED BY COUNTY DAIRIES

Although a milk shortage is said to be threatening in Columbus and Franklin county with city board of health officials seeking ways and means of averting a scarcity, Pickaway county dairies have not yet experienced any decline in supply other than the usual seasonal slide.

The Franklin county shortage has become so threatening, health officials say, that they are calling conferences to look for a way out of the difficulty.

Officials cite as the principal reason for the shortage the fact that dairy herds are being butchered for beef because of a lack of farm labor to tend the herds. Many rural workers have gone into defense plants and others have been drafted into the armed forces.

Despite this declaration by Franklin county farm leaders declared Thursday that while this might have been the case in some instances no milk shortage has developed because of it, at least locally.

The seasonal shortage is apparent now because herds have been deprived of green grass diet but have not been fed silage stored to tide them over during the winter.

Highway Bureau Gives Hints On Gas Saving

To help Ohio motorists get the utmost mileage out of a gallon of gasoline when rationing becomes effective December 1, the Ohio department of highways Thursday made public the practical results of exhaustive tests carried out under the watchful eyes of engineers in the division of traffic and safety.

These recommendations came from Hal G. Sour, director of highways, as a part of Gov. John W. Bricker's all-out for victory program.

The suggestions to motorists for conserving gasoline follow:

Under no circumstances exceed the 35-mile speed limit. Speed is the greatest consumer of gasoline.

Accelerate gently. Pumping the accelerator wastes gasoline.

Shut off the motor when the car is parked, when traffic is stalled, when waiting at a railroad crossing, or elsewhere.

Shift from second gear into high without delay. Low gear operation wastes gasoline.

Time the speed of the car with traffic lights. When a red light shows ahead take the foot off the accelerator and coast, letting the motor act as a brake. The light frequently will change to green before the car reaches it, saving another stop and start.

If the car is not equipped with an automatic choke, use the choke as infrequently as possible.

Do not weave in and out of traffic. Weaving wastes gasoline because of rapid acceleration required to pass other cars.

See that brakes are always properly adjusted. Too tight adjustment, or dragging, increases gasoline consumption and shortens the life of brake linings.

If the clutch slips have it immediately repaired. Riding the clutch pedal is a quick method of causing the clutch to slip.

See that spark plugs are always clean. Ten percent loss of mileage can be attributed to dirty or worn spark plugs.

Always have the fan belt properly adjusted. Constant slowing down or stopping will overheat the motor if the fan belt adjustment is faulty. Overheating the motor wastes gasoline and may result in scored cylinders in the motor, or other engine damage.

Have the car properly lubricated regularly. Adequate lubrication retards friction, and friction steals power and wastes gasoline.

Have the entire fuel system checked. To obtain maximum mileage it is necessary that the carburetor be adjusted to perform economically.

"It is the belief of our engineers that the suggestions we offer will go a long way in conserving gasoline, wear and tear on a car and costly repair bills," Director Sour said. "The tests we made were under all conditions of driving and if Ohio's motorists follow the suggestions we believe they will conserve gasoline and their cars for victory."

LEVEE BEING REPAIRED

Work on repair of a levee protecting his land near Yellowbud from flood waters of the Scioto river has been started by Robert L. Immel. The levee was damaged in the flood of 1937. Several Circleville men are in the crew rebuilding the levee.

YANKS IN AFRICA

IT IS NOT too good to be true that the Yanks are coming. They are there! That is the Monday morning joy with which Americans woke on November 9. Some of them heard the great news Saturday night, others got it Sunday morning, and everybody bung on to the radio most of Sunday. The news kept coming in and getting better and better, but it was very hard to believe.

It is not too good to be true. The Stars and Stripes fly with the tricolor over Algiers. The Yanks keep coming. The Yanks are there.

"And they won't come back till it's over, over there!"

Every American now living will thrill to his dying day over the achievements of the first week in November, 1942. He breathes deep now, and takes a new grip.

Every citizen of the occupied countries takes a breath of hope and his soul drinks deep of the sure promise of eventual freedom.

"Hope deferred maketh the heart sick; but the desire when it cometh is a tree of life!"

CROWDED TRAINS

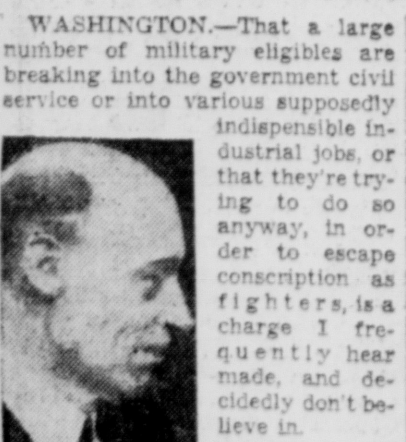

RAILROAD passenger traffic has doubled lately, and must be carried with the same old equipment. About 40 percent of the sleeping cars and 15 percent of the coaches are used all the time by moving troops. Besides regular movements of great numbers of men, there are always soldiers travelling on leaves or furloughs, or on some special war business.

The rubber and gasoline shortages have thrown another extra load on the railways. So trains are inevitably crowded and late.

As holiday time approaches the individual citizen would do well to think about this drain on railroads. Must the family really go to Aunt Jane's family dinner this year? Can they not put the travel money and Aunt Jane the turkey price into stamps instead? Holiday dinners, abundant but without the usual expensive frills, can give the sense of national Thanksgiving and joyful Christmas just as well this year without the travel. Then if the family feels it necessary to see Aunt Jane, the trip can be taken at a less crowded time.

Some travel to reach recreation spots is normal and right to take, but much may be dispensed with. Soldiers and sailors need train space more than most of us at this time. Save travel-money for after the war.

WORLD AT A GLANCE —By— Charles P. Stewart

Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON.—That a large number of military eligibles are breaking into the government civil service or into various supposedly indispensable industrial jobs, or that they're trying to do so anyway, in order to escape conscription as fighters, is a charge I frequently hear made, and decidedly don't believe in. It may be true in an occasional case, but, as a general proposition, all indications are exactly contrivance.

Young farmers, in short, virtually have to be conscripted for farming. A hand in some war producing factory is in a somewhat different classification.

Good Money Tempting

He makes better money than a farm boy. He probably is no more afraid of being shot at than the country kid is. He's liable to be strongly tempted to stay home, however, on account of financial considerations. Indeed, it's a ground upon which the farm youth may be tempted from his livestock, hens and dairying into city employment. The manpower commission has to bear that in mind and freeze the chap onto the soil for the duration.

Economists are speculating considerably as to what'll happen to agriculture when the conflict's over. They're curious also as to what'll happen to urban labor, but they don't rapidly think it'll be as urgent an issue.

They reckon that urban industry will have a tremendously accumulated demand to meet. It'll have piled up indefinitely while the fight's raged. There doubtless will be a bothersome interval of readjustment while things are getting back to a peacetime basis, but it'll progress as rapidly as the mechanics of it permit. Agriculture, though, it's calculated, will find itself overdone and overmanned. Just how rapidly it'll be able to re-adapt itself to peacetime conditions is a matter of guesswork.

A bird who has been intensively trained in a war machinery plant shouldn't have much difficulty in

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

HATRED OF MUSSOLINI

WASHINGTON: Inside intelligence reports from Italy indicate that the most violent repercussions have taken place as a result of events in North Africa.

For weeks Mussolini had dangled before the eyes of the Italian people the juicy reward of Alexandria and the Suez Canal. At one time he was so sure Suez was going to fall that he prepared for a triumphal entry into Cairo.

The Italians, discouraged with the war, were buoyed up chiefly by the thought that Suez would be theirs and they would rule the great Roman Empire again.

So news of the retreat in North Africa has been crushing. Hatred of Mussolini is at a peak. Dissension in the army is stronger than ever before. It seems certain that if Nazi troops were not in Italy the people would have revolted long ago.

At present Hitler has seven divisions or about 100,000 men in Italy, many of them being airmen on the islands of Sicily and Sardinia. Now he is reported to have about five more divisions en route from the Russian front to guard against the Second Front Allied invasion across the Mediterranean.

SURROUNDING DAKAR

Significant fact about the first U. S. landing operations was that no U. S. troops landed very near Dakar. This has long been considered the most important French base in Northwest Africa and the chief menace to the Western Hemisphere.

However, it was also known that Dakar was the most formidable fortress the French had in Africa. It had resisted the British fleet when they attempted to take it in 1940. It had also received the benefit of Nazi specialists in increasing its strength.

Particularly it had mounted sixteen-inch guns on railway cars for use along the African coast. A sixteen-inch gun is heavier and will shoot farther than the fourteen-inch guns on many U. S. battleships, and is the equal of the sixteen-inch guns on our other battleships.

Therefore, it was significant that while Vichy reported U. S. troops landing at Safi, north of Dakar, no troops were landed in its immediate vicinity. Also, it had been announced some time before by the British that American troops were in Liberia, south of Dakar.

Thus American strategy probably will be to isolate this all-important French base and capture easier and more immediate bases first. In other words, with Algiers and Tunis in Allied hands, the United States first could get at Rommel's rear, then could tackle Dakar when psychological factors had time to sink in.

The roads to Dakar from either Libya or the north are not the easiest in the world, but they are passable for mechanized troops, and the pick of U. S. armored forces are in West Africa.

Cervical Rib a Rare And Strange Anomaly

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONE OF my correspondents, for some reason that remains shadowy and obscure, has asked me to tell something about cervical rib. He rather seemed to doubt whether there is such a thing.

Well, there is, although it must interest very few people personally. Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It is of general interest only because it is in the nature of a curiosity.

The first rib in all properly constructed people arises from the first thoracic, or chest, vertebrae. There are twelve ribs, one for each of the thoracic vertebrae. Below the thoracic vertebrae are the lumbar vertebrae, and above them are the cervical vertebrae, or the vertebrae in the neck. A cervical rib may cause symptoms by pressure on the large nerve flexus which emerges from the spine at this point and supplies the arm, or from pressure and dislocation of a blood vessel of which there are many also in this region.

Case Histories But the chances are that no symptoms sufficient to bother the possessor of one of these curiosities will ever arise, and then only if the subject does some special kind of work or engages in an unusual form of muscular movement. One of my patients noticed it first when his father decided he was old enough to go hunting. He took a gun on his shoulder all day and this resulted in pain and numbness in his arm, which was easily associated with a cervical rib.

Another took up violin lessons at the behest, indeed the command of his mother. His attraction to the violin was nil, and it was only because his mother's father had been a violinist that he insisted on the lessons. As soon as he started lessons, he began to have a pain in the arm.

At first his mother naturally thought he was faking, but just to settle things she consented to a medical examination; the cervical rib was found and the mother was firmly persuaded her son should not attempt the violin. I believe that boy is the most grateful patient I ever had. He cannot even bear to hear a violin played nowadays, and though time has passed, he sends me a Christmas card every year, with a violin drawn thereon.

It will be seen from these two case histories that the symptoms of cervical rib do not begin to manifest themselves, if at all, until adolescence.

Symptoms

Symptoms—when they do occur—can be divided into nervous or circulatory, depending on whether the rib presses on or interferes with the action of nerves or blood vessels. Among the nervous symptoms are dilated pupil on one side, hoarseness due to pressure on the laryngeal nerve, sweating of the face on one side, numbness, pain or paralysis of the arm.

The circulatory disturbances are usually shown by the arm flushing and getting painfully congested when hanging down or when hard work is done. Cold weather also brings these symptoms on.

A cervical rib can be removed surgically, but usually the symptoms are so slight that the patient would rather stand them than take the risk.

Road to Romance

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

A SURGE of joy went through Mary as she realized she had reached the end of her quest. She had found Bruce Martin! If he would only listen to her now!

Joe Banks was tapping her arm with his stubby finger. "Hey—you'll have to excuse me for a minute, kid."

Mary nodded. That was lucky, she mused as Joe moved off. She had forgotten him entirely, and it was better he didn't meet Bruce. She walked hurriedly down the length of the bar. There was an empty stool beside Bruce, and she climbed upon it. She had to touch his arm before he'd turn her way. "Remember me?" she smiled.

He stared at her from blank, morbid eyes that gradually focused into disapproval. "What are you doing here?"

"Hunting for you," Mary said candidly. "It's bad luck to drink alone, isn't it?"

"That wouldn't affect me," he was about as low as he could go tonight, too low even for fury or resentment.

"Why did you take the plane up?" Mary asked calmly. She didn't expect an answer, but he gave her one in the absent, dispassionate tone of one removed from the situation.

"I wanted to think," he raised his glass and drained it, then set it down with a mirthless chuckle. "My reason didn't satisfy Danver."

"Maybe I can talk to him," Mary thought aloud.

"Don't bother, Redhead," he pushed his glass toward a passing bartender and pantomimed his order. "I'm through."

The smoky room was making Mary's eyes sting and her throat ache, but she went on, pleading desperately.

"Don't walk out now! They'll arrest you for sabotage if you run away! Stay just a little longer. They're going to break up the ring—please, Bruce!"

He turned away from her irritably. "For heaven's sake, Redhead, stop following me around and crying over me! Go home!" He turned back as he heard her jump from the stool onto the floor.

She faced him with blazing eyes. "I'm not crying!"

He laughed abruptly. "Wow! there's my little firebrand again!" She leaned across the stool to say in a quiet, firm voice, "I'm just trying to tell you—"

"Mary!" She turned around at the raucous hail to see Joe Banks swaggering through the barroom toward her. Bruce regarded the coarse, drunken, heavy-set man with disgust. "Did you come with—that?" he demanded.

"Yes," Mary said shortly. "Well, you're not going home with it," Bruce Martin snorted.

Mary thrilled to the words. But at that moment, Joe Banks was stopped. Four men had come in from the tap room and crossed to intercept him. Two of them were tough-looking yeggs, the third was bald and fat and the other a good-looking, well-dressed man of 47 or 48, with slow, careful movements.

They grouped around Joe Banks and talked to him in low voices. They were definitely displeased that he was here, and Joe was frightened.

Bruce stepped from his stool, took Mary's arm. "Come on," he said gruffly, "he's talking to his friends. He'll forget about you."

But Mary pulled free. "I want to meet his friends," she said with a determined little smile. "Good night." She had slipped away before he could reach for her again.

Bruce stared after her in amazement. He could have sworn she didn't want to go home with that stupid, drunken lummock a moment before. And he had felt her tremble as she watched the four men meet and talk to Joe Banks. But her cool goodby, leaving him flat for her escort—she must have changed her mind.

He paid for his drinks, watching the group's reaction to Mary. She was laughing, chattering to them—like a little fool, Bruce thought darkly. What was wrong with her?

What was so attractive about those five thugs? They were all moving toward the door now, her escort hand on Mary's arm, possessively guiding her ahead of the others. So that's the kind of a kid she was! Bruce jeered inwardly.

He crossed to get his coat and hat and put them on. He was suddenly sick of the place. Might as well go home.

The cold breeze off the ocean felt good as he went out the door and around the side of the long, low shack for his car. He saw the men getting into theirs. As he drove back toward the highway, he noticed their dark green sedan ahead of him, going up the coast road.

Involuntarily he kept them in sight, musing bitterly on them. Nice playmates for a kid like the Redhead! She wouldn't do herself any good fooling around with them and that was a cinch.

The green sedan speeded up. Absently, Bruce followed. Driving was good after an evening like he's had. He felt cold, detached, with an unfeeling exhilaration. Liquor was a thing to fall back on when they kept you from flying, a poor substitute, but better than nothing.

The coast road turned inland, left the lights of the city behind. The green sedan was really stepping! Bruce grinned absently as he glanced at his speedometer. He pushed down on his own accelerator. Good old Susie. She could pass any car on the road.

There was almost no traffic now. Except for the night trucking lines, Bruce and the green sedan had the highway to themselves. The sedan's tail light was a speeding beacon beckoning him on through the miles of coastland. He drove on and on—might as well. He had no place to go and all the time in the world to go in.

He had no idea of the consternation his whim was causing in the green sedan ahead. The four men were getting stiff necks from watching their pursuer through the back window. Elaine was being banded about among them. It fastened once on Joe Banks. What did the fool mean, anyway, going soft on a smart redhead from the plant?

"And bring her there—of all places!" "The fat man consoled, "Don't worry about her, chief. She's dizzy. She didn't know where she was."

"Yeah, you think everybody's dizzy but you," the chief bridled. "And I suppose you think that car's following us for its health." He turned to one of the yeggs, driving. "Turn off at the next road and go up over that hill. If he follows us . . ."

Bruce stepped on his brakes as the car ahead answered sharply off onto the narrow hill road. Then he turned after them. He had had a sudden impulse to follow the lugs, track them to their lair, and tell Mary all about them. Poor little nut. If she didn't have any more sense than this in picking her friends she'd end up in plenty of trouble!

The road was growing steeper now, winding through the narrow pass in the hills toward the valley beyond. Bruce felt that the sedan was trying to draw away. Let 'em try it! He swung around a curve and into a straight stretch of hill road, and shoved his accelerator to the floor. The car roared ahead for a hundred yards, then suddenly lifted with a violent concussion! As the car whirled in a wild circle, Bruce jerked desperately at the wheel. It was useless—the car was out of control! He slammed on the brakes, but the car was already plunging like a mad thing toward the edge of the narrow road!

YANKS IN AFRICA

IT IS NOT too good to be true that the Yanks are coming. They are there! That is the Monday morning joy with which Americans woke on November 9. Some of them heard the great news Saturday night, others got it Sunday morning, and everybody bunged on to the radio most of Sunday. The news kept coming in and getting better and better, but it was very hard to believe.

It is not too good to be true. The Stars and Stripes fly with the tricolor over Algiers. The Yanks keep coming. The Yanks are there.

"And they won't come back till it's over, over there!"

Every American now living will thrill to his dying day over the achievements of the first week in November, 1942. He breathes deep now, and takes a new grip.

Every citizen of the occupied countries takes a breath of hope and his soul drinks deep of the sure promise of eventual freedom.

"Hope deferred maketh the heart sick; but the desire when it cometh is a tree of life!"

CROWDED TRAINS

RAILROAD passenger traffic has doubled lately, and must be carried with the same old equipment. About 40 percent of the sleeping cars and 15 percent of the coaches are used all the time by moving troops. Besides regular movements of great numbers of men, there are always soldiers travelling on leaves or furloughs, or on some special war business.

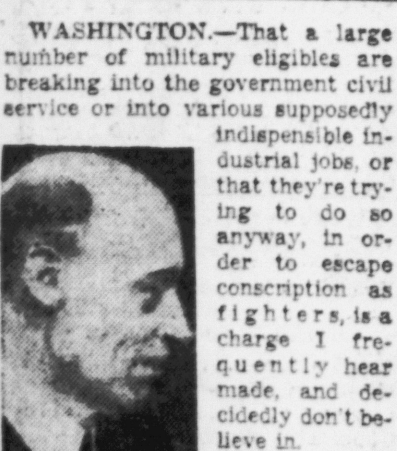

The rubber and gasoline shortages have thrown another extra load on the railways. So trains are inevitably crowded and late.

As holiday time approaches the individual citizen would do well to think about this drain on railroads. Must the family really go to Aunt Jane's family dinner this year? Can they not put the travel money and Aunt Jane the turkey price into stamps instead? Holiday dinners, abundant but without the usual expensive frills, can give the sense of national Thanksgiving and joyful Christmas just as well this year without the travel. Then if the family feels it necessary to see Aunt Jane, the trip can be taken at a less crowded time.

Some travel to reach recreation spots is normal and right to take, but much may be dispensed with. Soldiers and sailors need train space more than most of us at this time. Save travel money for after the war.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

WASHINGTON.—That a large number of military eligibles are breaking into the government civil service or into various supposedly indispensable industrial jobs, or that they're trying to do so anyway, in order to escape conscription as fighters, is a charge I frequently hear made, and decidedly don't believe in.

It may be true in an occasional case, as a general proposition, all indications are exactly contrivance.

Plenty of capable young farm hands, in particular, want to join our armed forces, who can't get themselves accepted. Their work on the land, providing grub for our uniformed warriors, is more valuable than they'd be as actual scrappers.

Consequently our manpower commission appealed to our Army and Navy authorities to reject 'em when they try to enlist. The treasury's procurement division also was asked to instruct contractors not to employ skilled dairy, livestock and poultry workers without the manpower outfit's approval.

Young farmers, in short, virtually have to be conscripted for farming.

A hand in some war producing factory is in a somewhat different classification.

Good Money Tempting
He makes better money than a farm boy. He probably is no more afraid of being shot at than the country kid is. He's liable to be strongly tempted to stay home, however, on account of financial considerations. Indeed, it's a ground upon which the farm youth may be tempted from his livestock, hens and dairying into city employment.

The manpower commission has to bear that in mind and freeze the chap onto the soil for the duration.

Economists are speculating considerably as to what'll happen to agriculture when the conflict's over. They're curious also as to what'll happen to urban labor, but they don't believe that'll be so urgent an issue.

They reckon that urban industry will have a tremendously accumulated demand to meet. It'll have piled up indefinitely while the fight's raged. There doubtless will be a bothersome interval of readjustment while things are getting back to a peacetime basis, but it'll progress as rapidly as the mechanics of it permit. Agriculture, though, it's calculated, will find itself overdone and overmanned. Just how rapidly it'll be able to re-adapt itself to peacetime conditions is a matter of guesswork.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

HATRED OF MUSSOLINI

WASHINGTON: Inside intelligence reports from Italy indicate that the most violent repercussions have taken place as a result of events in North Africa.

For weeks Mussolini had dangled before the eyes of the Italian people the juicy reward of Alexandria and the Suez Canal. At one time he was so sure Suez was going to fall that he prepared for a triumphal entry into Cairo.

The Italians, discouraged with the war, were buoyed up chiefly by the thought that Suez would be theirs and they would rule the great Roman Empire again.

So news of the retreat in North Africa has been crushing. Hatred of Mussolini is at a peak. Dissension in the army is stronger than ever before. It seems certain that if Nazi troops were not in Italy the people would have revolted long ago.

At present Hitler has seven divisions or about 100,000 men in Italy, many of them being airmen on the islands of Sicily and Sardinia. Now he is reported to have about five more divisions en route from the Russian front to guard against the Second Front Allied invasion across the Mediterranean.

SURROUNDING DAKAR

Significant fact about the first U. S. landing operations was that no U. S. troops landed very near Dakar. This has long been considered the most important French base in Northwest Africa and the chief menace to the Western Hemisphere.

However, it was also known that Dakar was the most formidable fortress the French had in Africa. It had resisted the British fleet when they attempted to take it in 1940. It had also received the benefit of Nazi specialists in increasing its strength.

Particularly it had mounted sixteen-inch guns on railway cars for use along the African coast. A sixteen-inch gun is heavier and will shoot farther than the fourteen-inch guns on many U. S. battleships, and is the equal of the sixteen-inch guns on our other battleships.

Therefore, it was significant that while Vichy reported U. S. troops landing at Safi, north of Dakar, no troops were landed in its immediate vicinity. Also, it had been announced some time before by the British that American troops were in Liberia, south of Dakar.

Thus American strategy probably will be to isolate this all-important French base and capture easier and more immediate bases first. In other words, with Algiers and Tunis in Allied hands, the United States first could get at Rommel's rear, then could tackle Dakar when psychological factors had time to sink in.

The roads to Dakar from either Libya or the north are not the easiest in the world, but they are passable for mechanized troops, and the pick of U. S. armored forces are in West Africa.

Cervical Rib a Rare And Strange Anomaly

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONE of my correspondents, for some reason that remains shadowy and obscure, has asked me to tell something about cervical rib. He rather seemed to doubt whether there is such a thing.

Well, there is, although it must interest very few people personally.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It is of general interest only because it is in the nature of a curiosity. The first rib in all properly constructed people arises from the first thoracic or chest vertebra. There are twelve ribs, one for each of the thoracic vertebrae. Below the thoracic vertebrae are the lumbar vertebrae, and above them are the cervical vertebrae, or the vertebrae in the neck. Occasionally, as an abnormal form of development, a rib arises from the last cervical vertebra, and the person in whom this occurs has thirteen vertebrae.

Bruce stepped from his stool, took Mary's arm. "Come on," he said gruffly, "he's talking to his friends. He'll forget about you."

But Mary pulled free. "I want to meet his friends," she said with a determined little smile. "Good night," she had slipped away before he could reach for her again.

Bruce stared after her in amazement. He could have sworn she didn't want to go home with that stupid, drunken lummock a moment before. And he had felt her tremble as she watched the four men meet and talk to Joe Banks. But her cool goodby, leaving him flat for her escort—she must have changed her mind.

He paid for his drinks, watching the group's reaction to Mary. She was laughing, chattering to her—like a little fool, Bruce thought darkly. What was wrong with her? What was so attractive about those five thugs? They were all moving toward the door now, her escort's hand on Mary's arm, possessively guiding her ahead of the others. So that's the kind of a kid she was! Bruce jeered inwardly.

He crossed to get his coat and hat and put them on. He was suddenly sick of the place. Might as well go home.

The cold breeze off the ocean felt good as he went out the door and around the side of the long low shack for his car. He saw the men getting into theirs. As he drove back toward the highway, he noticed their dark green sedan ahead of him, going up the coast road.

Involuntarily he kept them in sight, musing bitterly on them. Nice playmates for a kid like the Redhead! She wouldn't do herself any good fooling around with them and that was a cinch.

The green sedan speeded up. Absently, Bruce followed. Driving was good after an evening like he's had. He felt cold, detached, with an unfeeling exhilaration. Liquor was a thing to fall back on when they kept you from flying, a poor substitute, but better than nothing.

The coast road turned inland, left the lights of the city behind. The green sedan was really stepping! Bruce grinned absently as he glanced at his speedometer. He pushed down on his own accelerator. Good old Susie. She could pass any car on the road.

There was almost no traffic now. Except for the night trucking lines, Bruce and the green sedan had the highway to themselves. The sedan's tail light was a speeding beacon, beckoning him on through the miles of coastland. He drove on and on—might as well. He had no place to go and all the time in the world to go in.

He had no idea of the consternation his whim was causing in the green sedan ahead. The four men were getting stiff necks from watching their pursuer through the back window. Blame was being bandied about among them. It fastened once on Joe Banks. What did the fool mean, anyway, going soft on a smart redhead from the plant?

"And bring her there—of all places!"

"The fat man consoled, 'Don't worry about her, chief. She's dizzy. She didn't know where she was.'"

"Yeah, you think everybody's dizzy but you," the chief bridled. "And I suppose you think that car's following us for its health." He turned to one of the yeggs, driving. "Turn off at the next road and go up over that hill. If he follows us . . ."

Bruce stepped on his brakes as the car ahead swerved sharply off onto the narrow hill road. Then he turned after them. He had had a sudden impulse to follow the lugs, track them to their lair, and tell Mary all about them. Poor little nut! If she didn't have any more sense than this in picking her friends she'd end up in plenty of trouble!

The road was growing steeper now, winding through the narrow pass in the hills toward the valley beyond. Bruce felt that the sedan was trying to draw away. Let 'em try it! He swung around a curve and into a straight stretch of hill road, and shoved his accelerator to the floor. The car roared ahead for a hundred yards, then suddenly lifted with a violent concussion! As the car whirled in a wild circle, Bruce jerked desperately at the wheel. It was useless—the car was out of control! He slammed on the brakes, but the car was already plunging like a mad thing toward the edge of the narrow road!

County Defense Chiefs to Lay Plans for First Test Blackout

SESSION CALLED THURSDAY NIGHT IN CIRCLEVILLE

Progress Of Various Units In Organization To Be Reported To Meet

CASH AVAILABLE FOR WORK

Allotment Of Ten Cents Per Capita Expected To Meet Initial Expenses

Pickaway county rural area will start Thursday night to prepare for its first blackout test under the Civilian Defense program when mayors and Defense Council Chiefs of all villages in addition to those of Hallsville and Adelphi in Ross county gather in offices of the Circleville Herald at 7:30 o'clock.

The mayors, chiefs, in conference with Tom E. Wilson, publisher of The Herald and executive director of city and county Civilian Defense Councils, will make preliminary plans for the test to be held at a date to be announced later.

Heads of various phases of Civilian Defense already in operation in the villages will report on program being made.

At the meeting several communities will make application for their share of state funds for Civilian Defense work now in the hands of the Pickaway county treasurer. County commissioners are administering the state fund amounting to $3,100 on the basis of 10 cents for each person in each village. Circleville was given $795.20 since its population is 7,982. Amounts have been set aside for the villages on the same basis.

Circleville business men will start to prepare for the county seat's initial blackout test to be staged soon when they meet at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening in offices of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric company where Charles T. Gilmore, member of the Defense Council, will outline general plans for participation.

Importance of every merchant who keeps lights burning in his store at night attending the meeting was stressed.

The district's first blackout test is expected within the next six weeks and all communities, including Circleville, will conduct test blackouts prior to that date.

Mr. Gilmore will advise all Circleville store operators concerning proper procedure in case of a blackout test. Full responsibility for lights rests with building occupants, whether the buildings be private homes or business houses.

A series of short blasts on the whistle of the Container Corporation of America plant will herald the initial blackout and all lights in the city must be extinguished within three minutes. Signals for the various villages have not yet been worked out.

Because of importance of the blackout regulations, which declare that all lights must be out, severe penalties are provided for violations.

Every merchant who has lights burning at night in his establishment is urged to attend the Friday evening meeting.

NEW FURLOUGH SCALE DECIDED BY OHIO BOARD

Revising an earlier plan for granting furloughs for inductees, state Selective Service Thursday announced a graduated scale of post-induction furloughs.

Men accepted for service November 17, 18 and 19 will be eligible for 13 days furlough; November 20 and 21, 12 days; November 22 and 23, 11 days; November 24 and 25, 10 days; November 26 and 27, 9 days; December 1-4, eight days; and December 5 and thereafter, seven days.

Present furlough period is 14 days. It is being reduced gradually until it reaches seven days. The move was made in an effort to speed up inductions.

Cheers Up F. D. R.

Though she herself was bedfast in a Boston, Mass., hospital with pneumonia, Shirley Marston, 13, above, of Roxbury, Mass., got to worrying whether President Roosevelt wasn't worrying about wartime problems. So, Shirley sent the chief executive a cheerful note, assuring him that victory was certain. She is shown here reading the president's reply to her letter.

cannot waste ammunition on small combat units, must fly to main objectives, drop their expensive bomb loads and return. Scattered enemy tanks or trucks in the desert are not considered important enough game.

Because of this, American and British fliers used fighter planes for bombing operations. To do this they rigged up four or five fragmentary bombs of only 25 to 50 pounds each. And since the Italians and Germans did not have strong anti-aircraft, fighter planes swooped low in the desert, dropping bombs on fleeing axis units, causing tremendous confusion.

Another disconcerting activity was that of U. S. armored scout cars, usually manned by the British. Equipped with machine guns and 37-millimeter guns, they skirted the fringe of the enemy, firing almost at will. If they encountered tanks, the scout cars were so fast they could scatter and run. But they met little opposition and caused great confusion.

EFFECTS OF AFRICAN CAMPAIGN

It is almost impossible to over-emphasize the importance of the North African campaign if Rome is driven completely out of the Mediterranean.

First, it will mean a long line of air bases bordering the coast of North Africa from Cairo to Casablanca from which Allied planes can bomb Italian, Greek and even Austrian objectives.

Second, the old supply route to India, through the Mediterranean and Suez can be reopened. Of, if submarines should be too difficult, supplies could be unloaded at Casablanca on the Atlantic Coast, reloaded on the French railroad that skirts the North African coast, and shipped 1,200 miles to French Tunis. This would save a haul through the most difficult narrows of the Mediterranean.

Third, Russia could even be supplied by shipping through the Mediterranean to Beirut, Syria, and then inland, instead of the seven or eight weeks' voyage around the tip end of Africa.

Fourth, a lot of the British fleet, now conveying supplies around the tip end of Africa, could be released to tighten the blockade around Germany.

Fifth, the Italian fleet would be rendered impotent, and there are some observers who think the Italian fleet might even come over to the Allied side.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Some of the Cabinet who don't favor Thurman Arnold's trust-busting activities are pulling wires to get him out of the Justice Department and onto the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Thurman, however, is not likely to budge. . . . General Nogues, who took General Weygand's place as governor of North Africa, is married to the daughter of France's most famous foreign minister, the late Theophile Delcasse, historic hater of Germany. Delcasse is the man who negotiated the French-British-Russian tri-partite alliance against Germany. . . . Marshal Rommel's greatest handicap is reported to be lack of gasoline. . . . Allied air-planes have blown up a lot of his gasoline tanks, sunk his tankers. . . . This is a two-edged sword. While handicapping Rommel, it has also handicapped the British. In the last advance they captured and used his gasoline. Now they have to haul up their own—a terrific job over the desert. . . . Because of the lack of water in North Africa, the British have put diesel locomotives on the railroad running along the African coast to Bengasi. This saves water for the ordinary steam engine. . . .

GENERAL GIRAUD

Here is the story behind General Henri Hanore Giraud's early morning radio broadcast last Sunday, urging Frenchmen not to resist American troops. General Giraud, the only man to escape from German prison camps in both world wars, is a close friend of ex-Premier Herriot, perpetual mayor of Lyons and a great champion of democracy. American friends visited General Giraud some time ago and urged him to leave France and join the Fighting French forces of General de Gaulle. Giraud, however, refused. He said that he was opposed to the spilling of more French blood, and that when the proper time came he would say this.

So when American troops finally landed in North Africa, General Giraud carried out his promise and urged his countrymen not to resist.
